

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

[0026] A syringe cylinder is open to one side for accommodating a plunger and at the other side comprises a syringe connection in the form of a Luer lock connection. The Luer lock connection is formed by a Luer connection and a cylinder section with an inner thread, the cylinder section surrounding the Luer connection. On the outer circumference of the cylinder section there is arranged a ring tapering towards the connection-side end.